CONFERENCE SUMMARY

In an era characterised by rapid technological advancements, legal systems are confronted with unprecedented challenges that necessitate interdisciplinary approaches. The VIII International Scientific Conference (SEITE 2025) titled "Current Trends in Law: Security, Communication, and Regulation in the Modern World", seeks to facilitate a critical dialogue among legal scholars, practitioners and policymakers on the most urgent issues in contemporary legal practice. This conference is intended to convene experts from the fields of law, security, public administration and communication to explore the adaptive responses of regulatory frameworks to global transformations. Through plenary sessions, expert panels and interactive discussions, participants have the opportunity to critically examine legal strategies for addressing modern challenges, encompassing areas such as international security, digital transformation, legal communication and governance. The event offers a distinguished platform for high-level academic exchange, fostering collaboration between European institutions and global stakeholders while addressing the dynamic evolution of law in the 21st century.

LEGAL COMMUNICATION: SECURITY AND INTERNATIONAL PERSPECTIVE

Moderator: Assoc. Prof. Dr. Oksana Myronets, Caritas Trnava, Slovakia

Keynote address:

Prof. Dr. Joanna Osiejewicz, University of Warsaw, Poland (online)

"International Legal Communication: Challenges and Opportunities in a Globalised World"

In the context of globalization, international legal communication has become increasingly complex, presenting both significant challenges and unique opportunities. This session will explore how legal communication across borders is evolving, with a particular focus on the implications for international law practice, diplomacy, and dispute resolution. Encouraging discussion on strategies for overcoming communication barriers in international legal contexts, the session will also put emphasis on the evolving nature of legal cooperation in an interconnected world.

Prof. Dr. Joanna Osiejewicz, a renowned expert in international law and legal communication, will share her extensive knowledge on the intersection of law and communication in a globalized world.

Expert discussion and Q&A:

Iain Cameron Potter, Chartered Accountant, Singapore and UK

"Legal Communication and Security: A Practical Perspective on Cross-Border Cooperation"

In today's interconnected legal landscape, cross-border cooperation requires not only legal knowledge, but also effective and secure communication. This session will address the practical challenges faced by professionals when navigating legal processes across jurisdictions, particularly in high-risk environments involving sensitive data, compliance issues, and multi-national teams.

Iain Cameron Potter, an experienced international legal and financial advisor, will share case-based insights into how communication tools, trust-building, and legal strategy intersect in international collaboration. The discussion will explore how secure and transparent legal communication can enhance legal outcomes, mitigate risk, and support strategic decision-making across borders.

Prof. Dr. Andrii Kuchuk, Sumy State Pedagogical University named after A. S. Makarenko, Ukraine

"National Legislation and the EU Acquis: Terminological and Axiological Perspective"

As Ukraine continues aligning its legal system with European Union standards, the harmonization of terminology between national legislation and the EU acquis becomes a critical issue. This session will explore the theoretical and practical dimensions of this process, with a special focus on the semantic equivalence of legal terms, value-based inconsistencies, and the role of legal translation in shaping a coherent legal language.

Prof. Dr. Andrii Kuchuk, a distinguished scholar in legal theory and public administration, will address the challenges of adapting national legal concepts to the EU context. The discussion will emphasize the axiological tensions and methodological approaches in integrating the EU's legal values and terminology into national legal frameworks.
